Productivity Has Prerequisites

Key Trends

Performance is best in areas where there are known best practices and criteria.

Core-enabling activities still nascent, with a broad spectrum of funding allocation.

Al productivity is lagging but is likely held back by the immaturity and low performance in the core data tower.

Summary and Outlook

Summary	Market Outlook
Managed Services		Macro Recap
 ACV up nearly 3%, led by growth in Americas and EMEA. ITO up 8% as deals remain cost-takeout driven with savings reallocated to AI. The ITO market was down 6% Q/Q, so caution remains. ER&D up significantly as large integrated providers scale into larger transactions; BPO remains weak. BFSI vertical up 5%, reversing 10% decline from last year. Smaller, discretionary deals down 10% YTD. 	 Improving macro from 90 days ago, but uncertainty persists concerns around trade/geopolitics. AI has emerged as a dominant market theme, surpassing concerns like tariffs and geopolitical tension. Inflation fears have eased, and interest rate cuts are anticipation.
XaaS	Revenue Forecast
 Four consecutive quarters with both IaaS and SaaS up. Hyperscalers continue to ramp up CapEx to support the ongoing buildout of AI infrastructure. SaaS poised growth as the industry shifts to developing platforms 	Managed services sees larger transactions coming to market; BFSI has improved although small, discretionary deals remain weakXaaS grows as organizatio continue to invest in missio critical initiatives — often centered around Al
